Big Garden Party
Given at White House

President Assists Mrs. Harding in Receiving Hundreds of Guests and Joins in Dancing

From The Tribune's Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON, May 18.—The President assisted Mrs. Harding in receiving the several hundred guests invited to her "at home" this afternoon. The entertainment took the form of a garden party and was undoubtedly the most beautiful event of that nature ever held at the White House. The President and Mrs. Harding stood on the beautiful south front porch, the Marine Band musicians, in their scarlet uniforms, occupying the center of the lawn, and flower laden tea tables and a big marquee, with its red and white stripes, giving vivid points of color. The gowns, hats and parasols of the women showed the tendency to gay colors this year. Mrs. Harding wore a gown of jade green charmeuse, over which fell a gossamer crepe of the same shade, while panels of point applique lace in cream color fell to the hem of the skirt. The bodice showed green at the top of the deep rounded neck, and a sash of black satin passed around the waist and fell panel-like at one side to the bottom of the skirt. Her hat was black plaited maline, with black aligrettes, and over her arm swung a handsome Russian sable necklace.

Among the guests to arrive early were former Senator and Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew, who are spending ten days in town, and Ambassador and Mrs. Jusserand. Senator and Mrs. William C. Clegg, Representative and Mrs. Frederick C. Hicks and a number of other New York folk were among the first arrivals.

From 5:30 to 7 the Navy Band played for dancing. The President and Mrs. Harding danced a few times together and then slipped away to the private part of the White House. The Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes were entertained at dinner to-night by Mr. and Mrs. A. Garrison McIntock.

The Ambassador of Belgium and Baroness de Cartier went to New York today, preparatory to their departure, Saturday, for Belgium. The Ambassador also will visit Belgium in midsummer and will return with the baroness.

American Art Sells Well
The Junior Art Patrons of America, under whose auspices the retrospective exhibition of American art is now being conducted at the Fine Arts Building, 120 West 57th Street, reported today the sale of many works of modern art in line with their program for its encouragement. The announced purpose of the Junior Art Patrons, a society conducted under the patronage of many wealthy and influential residents, is to further the recognition of native artists, as a means to which members are pledged to make a yearly investment in art to the extent of $25 or more.

Thus far several scores of pictures have been red-stamped to denote their purchase, and the continuing interest is regarded as a hopeful sign for the future of art.

The exhibition, covering the history of American art, is open daily until 11 p. m.

College Women Hail Mme. Curie As Their Own

Most Notable Academic Gathering of the Sex in Carnegie Hall Pays
Her Glowing Tribute

Receives $2,000 Prize

Doctor Says Health of Scientist Will Necessitate Cut in Program

College women hailed Mme. Marie Curie as their own at Carnegie Hall yesterday in the largest gathering which has yet been held in this country in honor of the world's most famous woman of science. The hall was hung with brilliant college banners. Even the topmost galleries were crowded with college women and on the stage were the most distinguished women in American educational circles, in full academic regalia. Mrs. Edgerton Parsons, in opening the meeting, declared it was the largest gathering of university women the world had ever seen.

In the center of the stage, next to Dean Ada Comstock of Smith College, sat the fragile, white-faced guest of honor, smiling wanly as they heaped praises upon her. She was not able to make an extended address, as had been planned.

Physician's Statement
"I thank you very much for your kind words," she murmured in response to the chairman's welcome. "I shall never forget the very warm reception which I have found here."

Mme. Curie was attended by Dr. Edward H. Rogers yesterday morning at the home of Mrs. William Brown Meloney, her hostess, after which the physician issued the following statement:

"On examination I find Mme. Curie to have been very much fatigued by her voyage from France. She is in no condition to take part in the many receptions and dinners that have been planned during the next few weeks. I have so advised her."

Mme. Curie's career was held up to the young college women of to-day as their greatest inspiration, by the speakers at the Carnegie Hall meeting.

Gets $2,000 Prize
"She has proved that the most arduous professional career is not inconsistent with womanhood," declared Dr. Dean Comstock.

Dr. Alice Hamilton, professor of industrial diseases at the Harvard Medical School, urged college women, taking their degrees in science, to devote their lives to scientific investigation, especially in industrial diseases.

Ellen F. Pendleton, president of Wellesley College, presented to Mme. Curie a prize of $2,000, the tribute of the Association to Aid Scientific Research by Women.

Thirty-four college girls in caps and gowns, two from Eastern colleges, who have won highest rank in science, then passed in procession before Mme. Curie, each presenting to her a stalk of fleur-de-lis, the flower of France.

The long address of Mme. Curie, who was accompanied by Dr. Charles Thomas, president of Bryn Mawr College, who declared that American women must undertake compulsory world arbitration as the first duty of citizenship, was interrupted by the American women were the hope of the world and that they must emancipate the women of the harem.

The new canon is as follows: "The Diocesan Council of the Diocese of Long Island, as hereinafter constituted, shall have charge of the raising and apportionment of the parochial funds of the nation-wide campaign, of the unification, development and supervision of the work of missions, church extension, religious education and Christian social service, and of such other work as may be committed to it by the diocesan convention, and may initiate and develop such projects, and may hold sessions of the diocesan convention at such times and places as may be deemed necessary, subject always to the judgment of the convention."

A resolution was adopted by the convention requesting Congress to endeavor to bring about an international conference on disarmament.
